About Kitaibaraki City

Located on the northernmost tip of Ibaraki Prefecture adjacent to Takahagi City in the south Kitaibaraki City became the 15th city of Ibaraki Prefecture in 1956.

About 80 % of the city is covered with forest. The eastern part is lowland facing the sea. Rich flat land is found along the Okita River and the Satone River.

In the old days, Kitaibaraki City flourished as a center for agriculture and fishery. Late in the Edo Period, coal was found and the city thrived thanks to the Joban Mine. Now it has transformed into an industrial hub.

There are also hot springs in Hirakata, Otsu and Isohara where many reputed Minshuku (tourist homes) and Japanese-style inns are waiting for you.
